City council could support work program

by Kevin McDermott

Charleston City Council members have indicated they would back a resolution supporting the Illinois Department of Corrections' proposed work-release program here.

However, the council members said the wording of the resolution—still being finalized—could have an affect on their votes.

At a meeting in the Coles County Jail Thursday, state corrections representatives asked council members to draft and vote on the resolution, which would indicate whether the council agrees with the principle of the program.

City Attorney Tony Sunderman said the resolution will be considered at the regular council meeting on Tuesday. He added that the resolution is not on the regular agenda for the meeting because of the short notice he had in drafting it.

Sunderman, who was still writing the resolution Monday, said it states that "the city council has considered the concept, and supports that concept."

Coles County Sheriff Chuck Lister noted that the resolution is not an agreement to house the program in Charleston, only a statement indicating that the council will consider it, depending on the site and other details which are still being discussed.

"They (DOC officials) are looking for some kind of a statement that the people are opposed to having the program at all, or would agree to it (under specific conditions)."

Sunderman added that, if the resolution passes, the DOC would begin looking for a site in Charleston with the "guidance" of the council.

Finance Commissioner John Beusch agreed. "They're not asking us to commit to very much," Beusch added. "They're asking us to commit to consider it."

Public Property Commissioner John Winnett indicated Monday that he thinks the vote will come out in favor of the resolution.

"There's a good chance of it coming here," he said.

Legally, the department of corrections does not need the approval of the council to set up the program in Charleston, but Sunderman said the state prefers local cooperation.

"They have indicated that they won't go where they're not wanted," Sunderman said.

Western's coal-burning operation examined by State Senator Coffey

by Matt Glover

While plans are being made to convert Eastern's energy source from natural gas to coal, Western Illinois University is experiencing some problems with its coal-burning operation.

State Senator Max Coffey, R-Charleston, said last week, "They have had some serious problems at Western. They (the Capitol Development Board) have assured me they won't have the same problems at Eastern."

However, George Goehner, Western's Physical Plant director, said, "This project is a tremendous cost saver. We expect a payback in less than four years."

Goehner did cite some problems with Western's cooling-burning facility, which was put to use in May.

"There were some minor problems when we started, but any project has bugs when it starts," he said. "I'll be pleased when the bugs are worked out."

Western's coal-burning operation has "closed down a number of times to make repairs. The plant was closed for two months this summer to make repairs," he added.

"We didn't anticipate the amount of gas we had to use when we closed it down. Gas costs three times as much as coal does," Goehner said.

He noted that there has also been a "problem with the quality of the coal. It helps to have more than one supplier."

Western converted to coal because "the Governor wanted to save the state a lot of money and use Illinois coal."

Western is currently burning coal from southern Illinois.

Coffey said, "Western is having to absorb the cost of those problems. I'd like to make sure the rest of the institution (Eastern) does not suffer" for any losses the project may incur.

Coffey said he will investigate the possibility of a fund being set up from the project's savings to fix any of the project's problems.

Rives' college proposal compared to various schools

by Len Krasnowski

Administrators at various state schools said their programs similar to Eastern's proposed College of Applied Arts have been working well.

The proposal for a College of Applied Arts, which would combine the School Of Home Economics, the School of Technology, Career Occupations Program and Military Science Program, was authored by Eastern President Stanley Rives in August.

Currently, Illinois State University has a College of Applied Science and Technology and Western Illinois University has a College of Applied Sciences.

Both are similar to the proposed College of Applied Arts because they include a home economics and industrial technology programs in their colleges.

Southern Illinois University has a College of Human Resources, which is structured similar to the proposed College of Applied Arts.

Everett Israel, chairman of the industrial technology department in the College of Applied Science and Technology at Illinois State, said the college has run "very well" since its conception in 1973.

Rodney Fink, associate dean of the College of Applied Sciences at Western, said the college "seems to work out," since its formation in 1967.

Seymour Bryson, associate dean of the College of Human Resources at Southern, said the school was formed during university restructuring in 1972.

Israel said Illinois State's College of Applied Science and Technology has nine departments: industrial technology, military science, home economics, agriculture, criminal justice, applied computer science, health, health science and physical education, recreation and dance.

The administrators said their colleges have structures which differ slightly from the proposed College of Applied Arts.

Fink said Western's College of Applied Sciences includes industrial education and technology, agriculture, home economics, law enforcement administration and military science departments.

"At first the college only had the industrial education and technology, agriculture and home economics departments," Fink said, "and then they added the military science department in 1968 and the law enforcement department in 1970."

Bryson said Southern's College of Human Resources has six departments: social and community services, human development, comprehensive planning and design, child development, administration of justice, and rehabilitation instruction.

"Some of the departments came from the unit of home economics and some reported directly to the vice president for academic affairs prior to the restructuring," Bryson said.

Bryson also said two programs, human development and comprehensive planning and design, may be shut down when the college performs its two-year program evaluation because the programs are "not needed because of similar courses in other departments."

Israel said Illinois State's administrative structure includes nine department chairmen who report to the dean of the College of Applied Science and Technology.

Fink said Western's college administrative structure includes dean of the college, an associate dean and five department chairmen.

Bryson noted that the administrative (See RIVES, page 6)

Reagan: U.S. ties are stronger

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan pronounced his visit to Japan South Korea a success Monday, saying that "America's partnerships are stronger and prospects for a more secure peace and prosperity are better today than a week ago."

Nearly 16 hours after he was cheered by an estimated 2 million flag-waving people in Seoul while riding to the airport, Reagan arrived by helicopter on the White House South Lawn to a welcome by vice president and Mrs. George Bush, a military band and about 200 government employees waving small American flags.

"It's great to be home," the president told them. Accompanying Reagan and his wife, Nancy, on their homeward flight on Air Force One were two Korean children who will undergo heart surgery in New York.

Senator to run for fourth term

CHICAGO (AP)—U.S. Sen. Charles H. Percy announced his candidacy for a fourth term Monday and maintained he is undaunted by charges from his GOP primary opponent that he is not a "Reagan Republican."

"I am a Percy Republican," the 63-year-old millionaire said on the first stop of a six-city campaign swing through Illinois.

He tempered the statement by saying that his voting record on Reagan administration legislation is better than that of his declared GOP challenger, U.S. Rep. Tom Corcoran.

Artillery shells crash in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Druse shells hit Christian east Beirut on Monday, the Lebanese army fired at militiamen in nearby mountains and U.S. jets roared over central Lebanon.

In Israeli-occupied southern Lebanon, Israeli troops guarding the Awali River bridge shot and killed an unidentified man who tried to lob a grenade at them, the military in Tel Aviv said. Earlier, a roadside bomb slightly wounded two Israeli soldiers as their vehicle traveled east of Tyre, the command said. It did not elaborate.

As the largely ignored Lebanese civil-war truce entered its eighth week, the new U.S. special Middle East envoy Donald Rumsfeld conferred with President Amin Gemayel and top aides in Beirut.

Rumsfeld, who arrived Sunday, is expected to travel to several Middle East countries. Though officials declined to release his itinerary, Syria is believed to be on his list.

Lebanese state radio said shells from Syrian-supported Druse positions slammed into the Hazmieh and Furn el-Chebbak neighborhoods of east Beirut, killing one person and wounding one.

The radio said Lebanese army soldiers shot at Druse positions near the mountain town of Souk el-Gharb overlooking the U.S. Marine compound at Beirut's airport.

There was no word on casualties in that fight, but Marines said they were not affected. The leathernecks are part of a multinational force patrolling Beirut.

Cruise missiles arrive at air base

LONDON (AP)—Europe's first cruise missiles arrived Monday at a U.S. air base west of London, provoking outcries from Britain's opposition lawmakers and anti-nuclear protesters who called the step "a major tragedy."

But the British government said it could easily withdraw the low-flying missiles if U.S. and Soviet negotiators reach an arms-control agreement in Geneva in talks scheduled to last six more weeks.

Just after dawn, a U.S. Air Force C-141 Starlifter transport landed at Greenham Common in the countryside 50 miles west of London. Armed soldiers ringed the plane as helicopters hovered and workers unloaded two crates containing the U.S. missiles.

Several hours later, Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine informed Parliament of the missiles' arrival, shouting to make himself heard above opposition lawmakers who screamed "shame! shame!"

The missiles are the first of 572 cruises and Pershing 2s that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization plans to deploy starting next month if the Geneva talks remain stalled. The next round is scheduled for Tuesday.

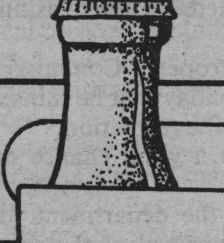

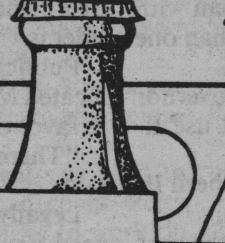

The missiles are to be deployed in Britain, West Germany, Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands.

Senate views registration

Dean Leatherwood said the Faculty Senate Tuesday will discuss the registration process, Senate Chairman Richard Goodrick said.

Mike Taylor, director of registration, will be asked about "the possibilities in terms of changes and improvements" concerning the system, Goodrick said.

The senate will question Taylor about changing the add/drop process to make it less time-consuming than the current system, he said.

In addition, Student Body President Cole will discuss his proposal to change the system for spring semester, Goodrick said.

Cole said he will discuss a plan to give priority to students who have paid their spring semester tuition by the November deadline. Students with late payments would also be included, he said.

Under the current system, each student is offered primary, secondary and universal selections. With Cole's proposal, students who have paid at registration time would receive another opportunity.

In addition, Goodrick said Sam Taber, dean of academic services, is "supposed" to appear at the senate to answer questions concerning the rationale behind the change in the academic calendar.

Eastern students will lose approximately one week of 1984-85 winter vacation. In addition, the academic school year will begin one week later than in 1983.

Taber said last week that the change in the calendar is the result of a "five-year cycle."

The Faculty Senate is scheduled to meet Tuesday at 2:15 p.m. in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola room.

Council vote would be meaningless

The Department of Corrections has asked Charleston City Council members to vote on a meaningless resolution Tuesday night which would support "the general concept" of a work-release program.

But a resolution supporting the general concept of the DOC's work-release program means nothing unless more specific information is provided.

Even if the council passes this vague resolution, it will have no immediate effect on Charleston's situation. City and county officials have repeatedly stated that the resolution is not a binding agreement, or even an informal one.

It's nothing more than a meaningless critique of a state program, without addressing any specifics about the proposed program in Charleston. By law, there is also no assurance that the DOC will comply with the city council's wishes.

A vague resolution which asks the council to support the program in a general sense serves no real purpose. In a general sense, the program could help alleviate the state's overcrowded prisons while giving inmates a sense of responsibility and independence.

But no one can fairly evaluate the program's feasibility in Charleston without more specific information.

Generality was a problem with the DOC's program from the start. Since the idea was first proposed at a council meeting six weeks ago, the DOC has offered little specific information about the location of the facility or the jobs that the prisoners would perform.

In addition, other questions remain unanswered. Although the DOC has assured council members that the prisoners will be well supervised, they have been vague on the specific supervisory procedures which will be employed.

A prison-work release program ideally gives prisoners an opportunity to get back into the mainstream of society. However, a delicate balance must be maintained between the necessary freedom needed to give inmates a sense of independence and sufficient supervision to insure Charleston residents' safety.

So far, DOC officials have not specified how that delicate balance will be maintained.

This information is needed before anyone can fairly evaluate the proposed program. Voting on a general resolution without any specific information will accomplish nothing.

Instead of asking council members to vote on a meaningless resolution, DOC officials need to provide specific answers to specific questions.

Responses are patriotic driv

The Marines are killers.

The Marines are heroes.

In recent letters to The Daily Eastern News, our boys in various third world countries have been the target of all kinds of fire, including debate over "what the Marines are."

Well, congratulations letter writers, I think the real issue has been effectively missed because of patriotic driv.

The Marines themselves are not, rather should not be, the topic of debate. It seems to me that they are being called "heroes" or "killers" for the wrong reasons.

The Reagan administration calls them "heroes" in an attempt to get public support for our presence in Lebanon and Grenada, a presence which is questionable to say the least. And please, don't take my word on that, ask the United Nations and our various allies.

I don't think I'd call the Marines "killers" either. They have been sent to a place to do a job. And in the course of that duty, they usually injure or kill someone termed the enemy, or are injured or killed themselves by the enemy. The praise or fault of these actions should lie with the person or persons who trained them to do the job and then sent them to places where the job would have to be done, whether they like it or not.

What I'd call the Marines are people, far away from home, doing a job that the rest of the world disagrees with.

The topic of the letters should not be whether they are heroes or killers. It's too soon to decide whether they are heroes or killers. History will decide what to call them, not administrations.

The topic of so many letters should be whether or not the rest of the world is right and the Reagan administration is wrong.

In other words, "Get a clue," letter writers.

Reagan and Ormiston

Editor:

Brian Ormiston, I've been wanting to do this since the beginning of the semester when you wrote your advice to freshmen about buying a backpack (cuz it's so cool) and not riding their bikes on campus cuz you cool upperclassmen would jam sticks into their spokes.

Believe it or not, for some of us, bikes and backpacks are a way of life (see, we're not woman enough to buy 'Chevys' and drive.) We need packs to carry our groceries home, do our laundry and get our books to campus. So keep your darn sticks in your pocket.

All this aside, what finally prompted me to write you was your outrageously idiotic column about financial aid and the draft.

Did it ever occur to you how much guts it takes to stand up for something you believe in? That any 'real man' could figure out that killing isn't getting us anywhere and someone sometime has to finally say no?

Yeh, it takes a 'real man' to go sign a piece of paper at the post office saying he'll kill people if the government asks him to.

What guts! Must be a great lover, even if he can't cook quiche.

You and Ronnie—what a pair! I only hope you're one of the first persons to go when this inevitable war starts.

Do a good job and kill lots of interesting people. Be a hero.

Nancy J. Cunningham

Uniformed protection

Editor:

I consider Nancy Cunningham's letter the most despicable thing ever printed in The Daily Eastern News. Her indignant statement attacked the act of referring to the Marines massacred in Lebanon as "heroes."

The men are heroes! They were not in Lebanon to murder, as she implied.

They are there to keep peace between warring adversaries. What is so muderous about such a purpose? Our Marines are involved in what is one of their most honorable causes since World War II and she had the gall to say they deserved to be murdered. An outlook such as this woman's is totally nauseating.

If our Marines are murderers, why do they carry their weapons unloaded? They are doing everything possible to avoid any kind of military action initiated by any faction. This is certainly not the conduct of well-trained murderers.

Cunningham gave us no feasible alternatives to her problem. Without proposing an alternative and allowing what she views as a problem to continue, she is just as guilty of any murder as the Marines she attacks.

Yes, she has the right to attack our Marines and the right to take lawful actions against her complaints. I remind her that she has those rights only because our citizens have enlisted in the Armed Forces to defend the American people and rights from her foes abroad. Without these men, Cunningham might be residing in a totalitarian state which would dispose of her for her criticism of its policies. But as for me, I thank God for our Americans in uniform.

Tim Ulmer

Just too many letters

The Daily Eastern News has received a large number of responses to Nancy Cunningham's recent letter to the editor headlined, "American Heroes?"

Regrettably, the News does not have adequate space to publish each letter. Thus, letters in response to Cunningham's letter will be accepted for publication until 1 p.m. Tuesday. Such letters will be published up until Friday.

Free speech can't die

Editor:
This letter is in defense of a principle. It also happens to defend Nancy Cunningham, but also the others who have written emotionally outraged letters concerning the dead in Beirut.

The soldiers in Lebanon are defending the pursuit of democracy and sign over the people by the people. Well, part of that philosophy is also freedom of speech. How dare Miss Cunningham be outraged? Well, she has a perfect and sacred right to speak her mind whether someone else likes it or not.

I do not happen to feel that the soldiers in Beirut are "murderers" (in fact, they had been ordered not to shoot back). However, the soldiers who died were innocently sleeping in their barracks when a highly emotional madman drove a rolling bomb upon them.

Soldiers, yes. Sadly, unfortunately killed in the prime of their lives. "Heroes," no; they were only unfortunate victims of the "heroics" of a mad radical (Yes, erroneously, the madman's compatriots undoubtedly believe he is a hero).

To me at least, it is highly ironic that Cunningham's choice to exercise one of the great rights of America—freedom of speech—has many calling her a Communist, traitorous and un-American.

I feel truly sad for the soldiers who died while they slept. It is tragic. But I also feel it is a solemn event; not one which should be exploited for political purposes to rally Americans with patriotism to the side of President Reagan and his aides.

As one might suspect, I feel that we should have left Lebanon when the U.S. did. If we had, perhaps these young men would still be alive. But, hindsight is blind. For this reason, I feel we should not let their deaths influence us into a patriotic fervor, leading us to send more soldiers over there. It could occur again.

Let us grieve for our dead fellow Americans and let the pain lead us to not allow more to die. But, let's not let a warrant the denial of Cunningham's rights, nor anyone else's on the side of pacifism simply because one disagrees with them.

Frederick Rapier

Marine rebuts opinion

Editor:
Nancy Cunningham, I don't understand why you are living in this country. I take a lot of pride in my country and that is why I joined the Marine Corps.

Marines feel that our nation has a lot which is worth fighting for and if we must fight for it, we will do so with pride. We have a Code of Conduct which states, "I am an American fighting man. I believe in my country and our way of life. I am prepared to give my life in their defense." Every Marine knows and follows these beliefs.

You mentioned that the Armed Forces are only trained to kill. You are completely taking this out of context. Marines are taught to use a deadly force, but what is stressed is to use this force only when your own life is in danger. We do not just go out and kill people for no apparent reason. Everything we do has a purpose. We will obey whatever mission is assigned to us, and we will not stop until the mission is accomplished. That is why we are such an elite fighting force.

I feel that this country and our own way of life is best. I respect other opinions, but I am sorry you feel this way Nancy. If you feel so strongly for the defense of Cubans, Lebanese and Russians, then you can leave this great country.

Fighting inevitable

Editor:

I was sickened to read Nancy Cunningham's letter. I would like to point out that the Armed Forces do not train "in the art of killing human beings."

They are trained to defend our country. It's terribly sad to realize that we need to rely on fighting to overcome our problems; but sad as it may be, that's reality. It's a part of all societies within this universe—no matter how primitive or sophisticated it may be.

Among other things, the Armed Forces teach young men technical skills that will enable them to be employed when their service is up. It may be hard for you to realize, but there are some people who can't afford to attend an educational institution when they complete secondary school; the armed services helps, to some extent, pave the way for those less fortunate than you and I.

If all Marines who were stationed in Beirut were trained to kill, then explain why they did not fire back at snipers, even when there were several Marines injured; and most important of all, why did 239 young men die in the bombing of a Marine camp (those Marines had special instructions not to engage in fire previous to the bombing.)?

Personally, if Cunningham had a boyfriend, a brother or close friend who was recently killed in either Grenada or Beirut, I'm sure her attitude would change.

For you servicemen out there; Nancy wants you to not shoot back or in other words, don't defend yourselves. Please don't die with the dreaded label of "murderer" haunting you and your loved ones.

I was also sickened to see the "All-American" funeral for that dead Marine. I was sickened to see the loss of life, especially one so young.

Just out of curiosity Nancy, were all those men who were drafted during the Vietnam War murderers?

Terra Yarbrough

The fight is right

Editor:

I don't know where Nancy Cunningham gets her foreign policy information but it sounds like the Russian news agency TASS.

She made a statement asking how many people the Marines had shot before he "got it." The truth of the matter is that the Marines had no order to shoot until after the killings at the airport and even then, it was only in self-defense.

You also asked what made the life of a Marine more important than that of a Russian or a Cuban. Actually, no one life is more important than another, but the Russians and Cubans have made it well known that their ultimate goal is world-wide Communism and I do not feel they have that right.

The U.S. Armed Forces' purpose is to protect us and our way of life and the best way to do this is to stop the problem at its root.

Much like pulling an ugly weed, if you do not get the root it will only grow back. Please understand I'm not trying to condemn Communism, but it should not be forced on anyone.

Likewise, I feel that America is just as forceful about pushing our type of government (in somewhat less violent manner), but that is not the issue I'd like to discuss. I'm talking about several dead Marines who gave their life because they believed in what they were fighting for and to me that defines a hero.

I would like to end this letter by offering my condolences to those families who lost loved ones in Beirut and Grenada.

Don Munie

Defend it or leave it

Editor:

I am totally appalled and disgusted by the callous and absolutely ignorant statement made by Nancy Cunningham. She is very unfeeling. How about the parents of those dead Marines? Don't they deserve a little compassion, or is that beyond her sensibilities?

In case Cunningham does not realize it, most people in the U.S. are proud to serve in the Armed Forces in one capacity or another. Besides being trained as combat troops, men and women are trained as doctors, nurses, carpenters, plumbers, clerks, mechanics and thousands of other useful trades utilized to serve their country and humanity.

Yes Nancy, people are sometimes asked to fight for their country and help preserve freedom—even the freedom of speech so people like you can spout off all you want. We even have freedom of the press so your letters can be printed without censorship.

As an ex-combat soldier, I would defend your right to the death to say whatever, whenever you wish. I have helped preserve these rights. If you do not think it is necessary for anyone to defend your freedom, maybe you should try living in Afghanistan, Poland, Angola, Cambodia or better yet Siberia. I am sure the people of those countries would gladly trade places with you.

Those Marines you chose to call "murderers" were not in Lebanon as combat troops. They were there as part of a multinational peacekeeping force. Although I don't agree with their mission, I hardly blame the individual soldiers.

One day you could have a son or daughter in the service of their country. I wonder how you will feel if he or she comes home in a box and someone calls him or her a murderer. You probably will never have those problems as you and your family likely will be hiding in Canada while someone else does your patriotic duty.

Coffey seeks nomination from the Republican party

by Mary Ann Byrne and Patty Connolly

State Senator Max E. Coffey, R-Charleston, Monday officially announced his candidacy for Daniel Crane's seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

"Reaching this decision has been one of the most difficult tasks of my 14-year political career," Coffey said Monday during a press conference at the Mattoon Holiday Inn.

Many factors had to be considered before Coffey decided to seek the Republican nomination in the 19th Congressional District, he said.

"Serving the people of my district has been and will continue to be my highest priority," Coffey said. He said that he believes that his experience in farming and business will enable him to understand and relate to the struggles of his constituents.

Coffey said he believes "a more moderate voice is needed in Washington." He said he has expressed that voice in the past as a state representative and senator.

The voters of the district deserve "a candidate with a proven record of good service," he said.

Coffey said that Crane's censure, for an admitted sexual affair with a 17-year old congressional page was not a factor in his decision to run for Congress. He added that he had been considering running before the incident occurred.

He did say that, if necessary, he and Crane will have a debate before March.

Before considering running for the seat, Coffey said he had to decide whether he wanted to spend about $500,000 on campaigning between the primary and general elections.

He added that, at one point, there were as many as 11 other nominees that were considering running for the seat.

structure at Southern, which consists of dean of the college, department chairmen and department coordinators, did not change when the departments were combined.

"Normal lines of communication still exist between the departments," he said.

Eastern's proposed college would use one dean where two are presently used. There would be two assistant dean/department chairmen from the School of Home Economics and the School of Technology who would report to the dean.

State.

"Still it is a large college and they (the departments) all have their own entities and unique role," he added. "The faculty all contribute to the administrative process."

Fink said there has not been any administrative problems at Western because the administration is composed of the strongest people from each department.

"You'd like to have the top man (dean) from your department but that's not always possible," Fink said, "but it's best to have strongest people from each department in the chairman positions."

Durham said she is taking a "wait and see" attitude as to what her vote on the resolution will be.

"The concept sounds good," Durham said, "but the actual implementation is something else."

Durham added that she will have to see how the resolution is worded before deciding how she will vote on it.

Beusch agreed, but added, "At this point, I would probably vote in favor of it, depending on the wording. I'm still open-minded about it."

Streets and Public Improvements

Commissioner Wayne Lanman said the program has a "good outlook," but added that he would have to know the specific location being considered before agreeing to house such a facility in Charleston.

Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer said he won't know what his vote will be until he sees the resolution.

"It's still too early to comment," he said. "The concept itself is good."

The regular council meeting will be conducted Tuesday at 7:30 in the Council Chambers.

Broken water main fixed

After many grueling hours of work in weather, mud and grimy water, Physical Plant workers fixed a broken water main Sunday night.

Physical Plant Director Everett said work on the water main began Sunday at 11:30 a.m. and continued until the problem was solved at 9:30 p.m.

He said Physical Plant workers were not determine the cause of the broken water main.

The workers dig around in the mud to find it. They have no idea what caused it. Whenever they find a pipe, they fix it and forget it," he said.

He added that because 90 percent of campus water was blocked to infiltration and foreign matter entering the water main," an attempt for water to be boiled was not

The campus water supply was turned off at 2 p.m. Sunday and remained off until the pipe was repaired. However, several residence hall counselors said students experienced few problems as a result of the broken main.

Matt Davidson, Douglas Hall counselor, said because the "water pressure was down," students could not flush toilets.

The problem lasted "just a matter of hours," he added.

In addition, Kaylin Payne, Stevenson Hall counselor, said, "Water was off for a little bit but was turned back on around 5 p.m.

"We were notified early enough so everyone took showers in advance," she added. Water pressure was the only problem Payne noted.

Beth Tankersley, McKinney Hall counselor, said the only problem she encountered was discolored hot water which she noticed 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

Kids work with art at TAC

Angela Backstrom said the pitter patter of little feet and high-pitched giggles may have drawn the attention of people who visit the art room located in the TAC Center Saturday.

Backstrom said the children are taking the art because it "gives them the chance to experiment with art." The children's ages ranged from four to seven years

Backstrom said the TAC gathers children from the Charleston and Mattoon areas "every now and then" on a weekend to make them more aware of the art around them. "We just want to make art a fun part of their life.

"Some may not have the chance to work with art in school so they can experiment here," she added.

For about an hour, the children oohed and aaahed over various designs they made with paint brushes and construction paper. Some children mixed 12 different colors just to get one color needed for a rainbow.

"At this age their minds are so good. They really are coming up with good things," Messenger added.

Three other art classes are scheduled from 1-3 p.m. Saturdays in November in the TAC.

Photography students can learn how to make their pictures more appealing to the eye by attending a photography lecture sponsored by Eastern's University Board.

Tim Mulholland, UB lecture coordinator, said the lecture will be given by a Kodak representative and will cover every aspect of photography.

"The lecture will be good for beginners as well as people who have been working with photography for years," he said.

Mulholland said some of the topics to be discussed include: composition, use of light, exposure, lens, film and portraits.

He said the photography lecture is the last one sponsored by the UB for this semester, however, the UB is in the process of making preparations for the spring semester's activities.

The lecture is scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Ballroom.

Germany discussed 'over tea'

Johannes Schlandt, foreign curriculum consultant to Lake Land College in Mattoon, will discuss current political issues in Germany at an International Tea Tuesday.

Schlandt is teaching English as a foreign language in the Munich school system, Rajendra Sinhaa, president of the association of international services, said Monday.

Sinhaa added that Schlandt will also speak about his German background, aspects of the German culture and differences between the German school system and U.S. school system.

The discussion will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the Wesley Foundation, 2202 Fourth St.

Salukis' bid for perfect season lost

CARBONDALE, Ill.—The dream of an undefeated season and a conference title turned sour for Southern Illinois coach Rey Dempsey when the Salukis fell to Wichita State, 28-6, in their last game of the season.

Crying inside, just like you, Dempsey told the players Saturday's game. The loss left the Salukis second and 5-0 Tulsa in the Missouri Valley Conference with a 4-1 record, 10-1 overall.

The Salukis were the No. 1 seed last week in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I-AA division poll.

Dempsey, who learned Monday the Salukis would get a first-round bye in the division playoff, confident of his team's chances of winning the championship.

He told the Salukis they must win the Wichita State game behind

"We're not going to change our strategy just because we lost a game," Dempsey added. "You've got to forget it."

Quarterback Rick Johnson also said the Salukis would do well to win the only loss of the season.

"We get all wrapped up with the game, we're in trouble," he said. "Last year's loss to Arkansas affected us for a month."

Sports information director Jeff Huff said SIU will enter the playoffs in the quarterfinals Dec. 3 in Carbondale.

both first and second round games during the past two years," he said.

For example, MacKenzie pointed out Eastern was considerably more likely to host post-season competition in St. Louis before this season.

Two years ago when St. Louis was the seed and they were to play Eastern, it was Eastern who got to host the game," MacKenzie said.

Hyndman said Eastern is capable of winning the game and believes the difference in revenue generated by allowing the Panthers to host the game is minimal.

"We've been averaging about 1,000 fans a game and for a big game like this we'd expect between 2,500 and 3,000 people. I think basically it would be a $400-$500 difference," he said.

Hyndman beat them decisively at their home and earn the right to host the tournament, so why sacrifice the whole thing for $400-$500?" he concluded.

Hyndman pointed out that returning champion Indiana University and runner-up Duke University hosted games leading up to the title game.

Hyndman would like the Panthers to have the advantage this weekend, he said, but the Panthers' lone loss to the Methodist is equally important.

"I'd really like to play SMU and they think they destroyed us and they have enough pride that we can't show them who really is better," Hyndman said.

Cagers to be solid in south

N.C. State looking to repeat last season

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—No one has been able to wrest the NCAA Division I basketball title from the South the past two seasons, and there are signs that the task will be even harder in 1983-84.

North Carolina State is the reigning champion, but the loss of seniors Dereck Whittenburg, Sidney Lowe and Thurl Bailey will make repeating very difficult.

Center Cozell McQueen and forward Lorenzo Charles, the hero of last season's 54-52 victory over Houston for the NCAA championship, are the strength of the Wolfpack's returnees.

Freshman center Terry Schackelford could provide help inside, while 5-foot-6 Anthony "Spud" Webb will dazzle Wolfpack fans with his ability to dunk.

Webb and sophomore Ernie Myers are strong candidates to inherit the guard spots held last season by Lowe and Whittenburg.

Of the schools waiting to continue the recent Southern domination of college basketball championships, the best appears to be Kentucky, which boasts one of the largest starting front lines in college basketball. There is 6-9 Kenny Walker, 7-1 senior Melvin Turpin and 7-0 Sam Bowie, finally recovered from a nagging leg injury. Three starters are missing from the 23-8 team that lost to Louisville in the Mideast Regional final last season.

If someone knocks the Wildcats down to size, there is North Carolina, which edged Georgetown for the NCAA title in 1982. Junior Michael Jordan and senior Sam Perkins, both of whom refined their skills last summer in the Pan American Games, lead the 28-8 team that lost to Georgia in the East Regional final.

Coach Dean Smith had one of his best recruiting years, bringing in big men Joe Wolf and Dave Popson.

Eastern wrestlers open season with impressive effort

by Jeff Long

Eastern's wrestling team opened its regular season Sunday with an impressive second place finish at the nine-team Michigan State University Invitational.

The Panthers collected 102½ points to outlast third place Indiana State University which finished with 95½ points. Host Michigan State captured the overall title with 130¼ points.

Eastern's second-place showing gave first-year Eastern head coach Ralph McCausland an opportunity to evaluate his squad, he said. Although he said he was impressed with the squad's performance, McCausland admitted the Panthers need some work.

"We wrestled very well for our first meet," McCausland continued. "We've got a lot of work to do but there is a long season ahead of us to work on those things."

"Overall we had a fine tournament," he added. "We were ahead of Michigan State going into the finals. That's where they beat us but still we fared pretty well."

Freshman Chris McFarland (150 pounds) came through with a top individual effort, notching Eastern's only first-place finish. In addition, sophomore Mark Ruettieger (134 pounds) and heavyweight Duanne Clark won their respective semi-final matches before being eliminated in the championship round.

Tom Vickers (126 pounds) and Bernie Ruettieger (142 pounds) each finished third to round out Eastern's top finishers Sunday.

McCausland said the tournament served its purpose by providing the Panthers with "a little extra experience" and opened their eyes to things they need to work on.

"Most of them (Eastern's wrestlers) were disappointed," he said. "There was more individual talent there than we thought there would be, but everything placed which is nice."

"We saw a lot of different styles along with many different styles which was good," he added.

Booters receive bye in post-season tourney

by Mike Lynch

Eastern's soccer team qualified Monday for its third straight NCAA Division I post-season tournament and received a first-round bye.

The Panthers, 16-1, enter the 24-team tournament representing the Midwest region as its top seed. St. Louis University and Southern Methodist University also qualified from the region.

Despite being the top seed, Eastern is not guaranteed of hosting the Midwest region championship game Nov. 19 or 20, head coach Schellas Hyndman said Monday.

The Panthers, who will face the winner of St. Louis and Southern Methodist Saturday or Sunday, may have to play away from Lakeside Field because of financial considerations.

If the Panthers meet St. Louis in the regional final, the contest could be played in St. Louis where it would produce more revenue, an NCAA official said Monday.

John MacKenzie, NCAA Midwest regional chairman, said seedings are not necessarily the top priority in choosing sites for games.

"It simply boils down to finances and selecting the kind of facility that is best qualified to host the game," MacKenzie said.

MacKenzie added the only sure way Eastern would host the Midwest championship is if Southern Methodist wins Wednesday.

"They (Eastern) obviously feel that since they're seeded No. 1 that they deserve to be host, but that is not the position the National Soccer Committee takes," MacKenzie said.

Hyndman said, "We're obviously quite disappointed, we feel that we've earned the No. 1 seed and

thus feel we deserve to be the number one host.

"It would be a crime if we weren't allowed to host the game," Hyndman continued. "They (St. Louis) had the chance to beat us at home once already. Why give them a second chance?"

MacKenzie said he will attend Wednesday's game in St. Louis before making a recommendation to the tournament committee on the location for the Midwest final.

"I've been to Eastern and know what they have to offer but St. Louis has a new facility this year so we have to view it first before making a recommendation," MacKenzie said.

MacKenzie said he believes Eastern is capable of hosting post-season competition, but right now it's a wait and see situation.

"I definitely feel Eastern's qualified as the top seed," he added. (See BOOTERS, page 11)

Illinois strives to finish like champs

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—There will be no let-up this week against Northwestern even though Illinois already has clinched its first Rose Bowl bid in 20 years, says Coach Mike White.

"We're anxious to finish like champions with style and class," White said at a Monday news conference. "I'm not sure we've played our best game yet."

Illinois guaranteed itself a trip to Pasadena with Saturday's 49-21 victory over Indiana. The Illini, 9-1, already have their best record in 32 years and could become the first Big Ten team to beat all nine conference opponents. Illinois now is 8-0 in the league.

"It's very important to us to finish the Big Ten season undefeated," said White. "I can't tell you how proud we are of what's been accomplished. The Rose Bowl is what it's all about. It means success and accomplishment."

Panthers notch No. 10 spot in I-AA poll

by Kirby Flowers

Eastern's 34-14 victory over Western Kentucky University Saturday enabled the Panthers to move up a notch to 10th in the NCAA I-AA rankings Monday.

"After Saturday's win we expected to move up to at least 10th," Eastern head coach Al Molde said, "and we hoped we would move up two spots."

"The really important game to us last Saturday was the South Carolina State game," Molde added. "It helped us out quite a bit."

South Carolina State, which was previously ranked No. 7, lost to Grambling State University 14-3 Saturday.

Consequently, South Carolina dropped to No. 16 and allowed Eastern, 9-2, which was tied for 11th last week, to move into the I-AA's top ten teams.

In addition, Molde said last week that he thought the Panthers would gain further help when No. 2-ranked Northeast Louisiana University met No. 10-ranked North Texas State University.

"I think Northeast Louisiana is certainly capable of beating North Texas," Molde said last Monday. "If they do then that would give North Texas four losses and I think that would just about put them out."

However, North Texas surprised Molde Saturday as it upset Northeast Louisiana 27-7. The North Texas win moved it up to No. 5, while the loss dropped Northeast Louisiana to a tie for 7th place.

As a result, Eastern was able to move up only one notch, which means the Panthers' playoff hopes are still up in the air.

"Right now we are competing for the 11th or 12th spot," Molde noted Monday.

Since there are only 12 teams given post-season bids Eastern's hopes are still iffy at this point.

In other action, Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, last week's top I-AA team, suffered its first loss of the season as the Salukis were ambushed by Wichita State University 28-6 Saturday.

Despite the loss, Southern Illinois, 10-1, only fell one spot to the No. 2 position this week.

The Southern Illinois loss, however, enabled Holy Cross 9-0, the only undefeated team in the poll, to move into the No. 1 spot following a 24-0 victory over the University of Delaware Saturday.

Meanwhile, Furman University moved up a notch after the Northeast Louisiana loss, rounding out the top five I-AA teams.

Furman, 8-1, used a 24-14 win over the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga to move up to the No. 4 spot. While Eastern Kentucky, 7-1, edged Morehead State University 34-14 to notch No. 5.

Indiana State University, 8-3, made the biggest jump in Monday's poll as the Sycamores moved up four places to No. 6 with a 38-0 trouncing over Delta State University.

Rounding out the top ten teams are Middle-Tennessee State University and Jackson State University.
